Introduction

This guide contains procedures for importing the North American English-Custom translation into your WorkBook environment. It applies to on-premises, client/server, and cloud deployments of WorkBook.

Attention: If you are running WorkBook Version 13.2, the English-Custom translation is preloaded on your system and automatically available to you. You can enable it in the same way that you enable any translation. You are not required to follow the instructions for applying it that are provided in this guide.

If you are running a WorkBook version that predates Release 13.2, you must still follow the import and apply instructions that are provided in this guide.

See Deltak WorkBook English-Custom Language Glossary for descriptions of terminology changes that are introduced by the English-Custom translation.

English-Custom Translation Overview

The English-Custom translation is a custom translation that offers North American-specific terminology.

This guide provides instructions for applying this custom translation into your demo environment.

Attention: You must be a System Administrator to enable English-Custom as a language under Settings » Global System Settings » Languages.

Tip: This guide also provides instructions for applying English-Custom to your system. You must have Administrator access rights to perform these setup tasks.

Before You Begin

Prerequisites

Before you can apply the English-Custom translation, ensure that the following setup tasks have been completed (steps are outlined in the following sections).

- System Settings – Ensure that English-Custom (Language Code 10249) is enabled under Settings » Global System Settings » Languages.
- My Settings – Ensure that the System Language and Report Language are set to English-Custom under My Settings » Language & Formatting Options.
- Obtain the Translation Unique ID from Deltek Customer Support. This ID is required so that you can apply the custom translation to your WorkBook system. (See Import English-Custom for detailed information about the Translation Unique ID.)

Additional Considerations

Translation Application

- When/if you are ready to apply English-Custom onto your system, ensure that System Variable 142 is set to English-Custom.

English-North America

- Note that English-North America remains the Default System Language that English-Custom defaults to until you apply the English-Custom Translation.

At this point you have imported the Custom Translation into your WorkBook system. Next, you must apply it to your WorkBook system.

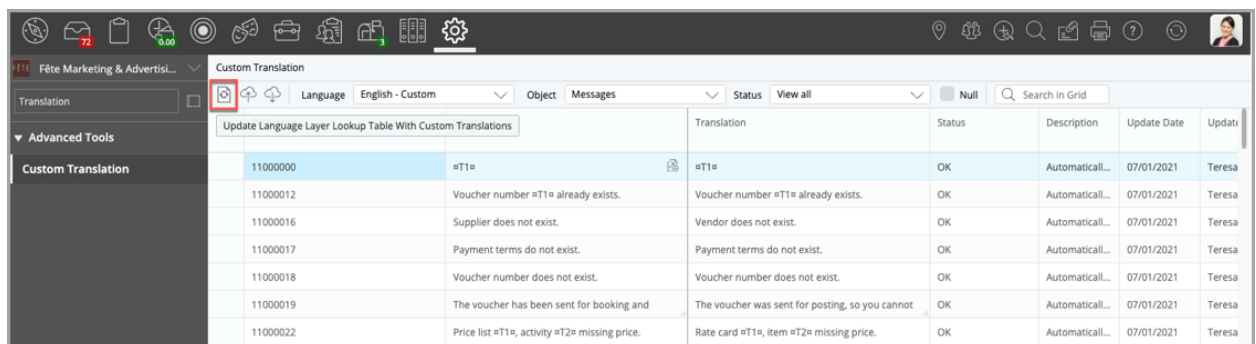

Apply English-Custom to your WorkBook System

You must apply the translation to one Object in your WorkBook system. The following steps show how to apply it to the Messages Object as an example.

To apply English-Custom to an Object:

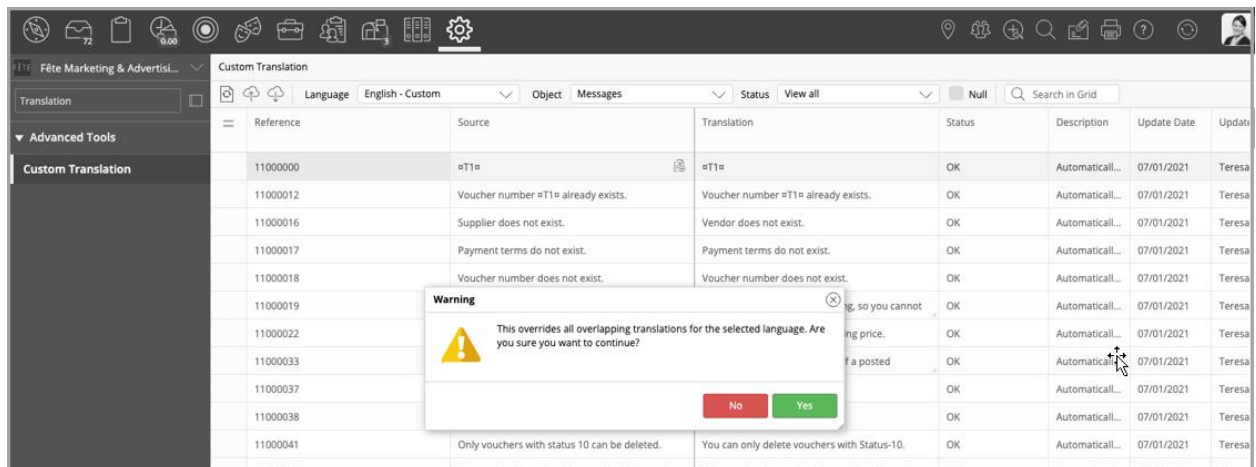

1. Navigate to the Object to which you want to apply English-Custom, such as Object » Messages.
2. Click  Update Language Layer Lookup Table with Custom Translation.

The following figure shows an example.

A warning dialog indicates that the applied custom translation overrides all overlapping translations for the selected language for this Object. The following figure shows an example.

Warning

This overrides all overlapping translations for the selected language. Are you sure you want to continue?

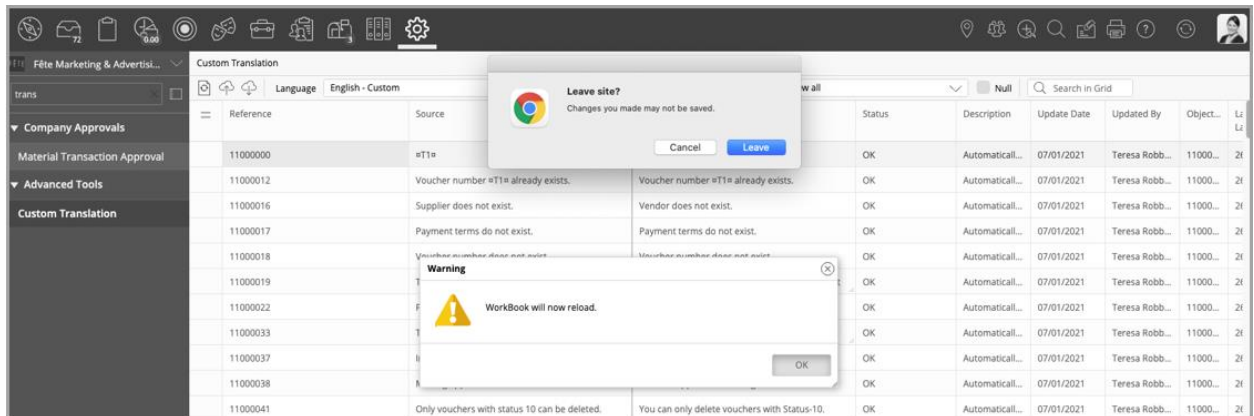

No Yes

3. Click Yes in the dialog.

WorkBook then applies the custom translation; a dialog prompts you to refresh.

After the override is complete, WorkBook displays a notification that it will reload. The following figure shows an example.

Install English-Custom

Tip: You might also see a Leave site? dialog, depending on your browser and browser preferences. If you do, click Leave.

- Click OK in the Warning dialog that informs you that WorkBook will reload.

After WorkBook applies the custom translation, you can view the Update Date and the Updated by information. The following figure shows an example.
