

Deltek Costpoint Hot Fix Readme

Release Date: August 31, 2018

Include Variance Amounts in the Statement of Indirect Expenses

A new Variance column has been added to the Statement of Indirect Expenses (SIE) so you can know the difference between actual and budgeted amounts and determine where you are missing budgeted numbers that could account for a higher than expected indirect rate. Variance amount is calculated as Budget amount – Actual amount.

To display this column, you must select the new Show Variance Column check box on the Compute/Print Pool Rates screen and select from the following options:

- Current Period — Select this option to display variance amounts in the current period. When you select this option, the Variance column is displayed under Current Period on the SIE, together with the Actual and Budget columns.
- Year To Date — Select this option to display year-to-date variance amounts. When you select this option, the Variance column is displayed under Year To Date on the SIE, together with the Actual and Budget columns.

Note: The Year To Date Budget column is hidden when you select Current Period, and the Current Period Budget column is hidden when you select Year To Date.
